Raccolta di saggi sull'insegnamento di Freud e Lacan intorno ad alcune patologie quali l'anoressia, le dipendenze e le psicosi, nelle quali la dimensione del vuoto si impone come determinante. Tale vuoto si trova nel ricorso al consumo smodato o errato di sostanze, nel gioco della maschera sociale, nell'ordinarietà della follia contemporanea, nella diffusione di versioni mortifere del narcisismo e nell'uso distruttivo del proprio corpo.

I saggi contenuti in questo volume ripercorrono la riflessione teorico-clinica che ha portato Massimo Recalcati ad affermarsi come voce di riferimento della psicoanalisi italiana. Dalla psicopatologia dell' anoressia e della bulimia alla clinica dei nuovi sintomi, sino al " complesso di Telemaco " e alle riflessioni su psicoanalisi ed estetica, questo libro sintetizza l' itinerario di un pensiero.

In questo libro si indagano le forme contemporanee del disagio della Civiltà: anoressie, dipendenze patologiche, bulimie, tossicomanie, depressioni e attacchi di panico. Si tratta di fenomeni di natura epidemica che impongono una nuova psicologia delle masse e un nuovo ritratto della nozione stessa di sintomo. In questo libro il lettore troverà brani di insegnamento scelti su questi temi. Il suo stile chiaro e «parlato» e la sua impostazione non solo psicopatologica ma aperta a una riflessione più ampia sulla natura dei legami sociali lo connotano come uno strumento utile per tutti coloro che vogliono avere una comprensione più critica e consapevole del nostro tempo.

This collection provides English readers with a critical update on current debates on biopolitics in and around Italian thought. More than a decade after the publication of seminal books such as Agamben's Homo Sacer and Hardt and Negri's Empire, the names of, among others, Roberto Esposito, Paolo Virno, Christian Marazzi, and Andrea Fumagalli have recently been brought to the attention of Anglophone scholars and political activists. Several authors have rightly emphasised the evanescent character of biopolitics, and the difficulty in providing a definition of it that could embrace all the conflicting theories of its most celebrated critics and supporters. The present collection is structured around the basic contention that bio-economy, human nature, and Christianity are the three visible contemporary manifestations of the theoretical object/problem of biopolitics in, respectively, Italian post-workerist economics, post-Marxist philosophical anthropology, and post-structuralist ontology. This book was originally published as a special issue of Angelaki.

Fatherhood today is in crisis. Fathers have gone missing, or have become their children's playmates, and the symbolic authority of the father has lost its power. What remains of the father today in the wake of this decline, and what should the relation between children and parents now be? In addressing these questions, Massimo Recalcati draws inspiration from the story of Telemachus in Homer's Odyssey. The Telemachus complex is the reverse of the Oedipus complex. Recalcati argues that children are possessed not just with a desire to annihilate their father, as their key rival in the contest to win the mother's love, but also with a longing for a father-figure, as someone who brings meaning, structure and order to their lives and who imbues them with a sense of the future. This fresh and insightful account of the changing relations between parents and children in the era of the decline of the father will be of great interest to a wide general readership.

Relationships fall apart, marriages fail, couples break up – it happens to us all. Time corrodes passion and the routines of daily life kill the excitement that surrounds the emotion of the first encounter. The difficulty of uniting sexual pleasure with love, which Freud considered to be the most common neurosis in any love life, has become emblematic of a truth that seems undeniable: desire is destined to die if its object is not constantly renewed, if we do not change partner, if it is closed for too long in the restrictive chamber of the same bond. And yet what happens to these bonds when one of the two partners betrays the other, when the promise fails, when there is another emotional experience cloaked in secrecy and deceit? What happens if the traitor then begs forgiveness? Are they asking to be loved again and, having declared that it is not like it used to be, now want everything to go back to how it was? Should we make fun of lovers in their attempts to make love last? Or should we try to face up to the experience of betrayal, with the offence caused by the person we love most? Should we not perhaps attempt to praise forgiveness in love?

In this book the bestselling author and psychoanalyst Massimo Recalcati offers a fundamental re-examination of what 'being a mother' means today, in a world where new social and sexual freedoms mean that motherhood is no longer the sole destiny of women. Questioning the belief that a mother's love is natural and unconditional, he paints a more complex and troubling picture of the mother-child relationship, observing that mothers may even resent their children as a result of unresolved conflicts between different dimensions of love. The mother's hands not only nurture but can also potentially harm. Recalcati argues that it is precisely in these competing demands that motherhood fulfils its function: only if the mother is 'not-all-mother' can a child experience the absence that enables it to access the symbolic and cultural world. Recalcati cuts through conventional wisdom to offer a fresh perspective on the changing nature of motherhood today. An international bestseller, this book will appeal to a wide general readership, as well as to students and scholars of gender studies, psychoanalysis and related disciplines.
