book is about a syndrome called Indigo. It is carried by certain children, though why them it is not clear. Most of the children we deal with are male but it does seem to affect girls as well.

His alter ego, math teacher Clemens Setz, interns at a school in Graz for children diagnosed with Indigo, a disorder that causes dizziness, nausea, diarrhea, and other symptoms in nearby people.

Clemens soon notices that some children are “relocated”

What drew me to Indigo, the newly-translated novel from Austrian wunderkind Clemens J. Setz, was its premise. Setz
imagines an alternate dawn to the twenty-first century wherein a new medical
